Thomas Cromwell (Roundheads) Thomas Cromwell, also called Tom and Tom the Cork, was a publican, Republican volunteer and one of the leaders of the Parliamentary rising in the city of Cork, Ireland, in 1798. Biography Early life Tom Cromwell was born in the city of Cork in 1762 to the family of an officer who was killed at the Battle of Fontenoy in 1745 during the Jacobite rising. His grandfather William Cromwell died about ten years before his father, as payment for the family having given up the Old English language to speak only Irish. Before the rebellion Tom Cromwell worked as a publican, and was a friend of J. M. McCaughan, the leading Republican volunteer in the city. Rebellion of 1798 On 6 June 1798, the city was taken by force from the Jacobites and from that day on the "Whiteboys", as the people of the area were called, took up arms, against their former allies. Shortly after the rebellion began McCaughan with two men from Castle Street took the porter house on Castle Street, and kept the Loyalists and the troops from entering the city. On the first day of the rebellion, Cromwell led a party of volunteers through the Bogart's Pawnhouse and through a secret underground vault, and into the Jesuit's church on Castle Street and from there up a rocky pathway to the roof of the Custom House. From here they raided the 'Five Gun Club', a private militia under the command of David Kilcourseie. Despite the fact that the insurgents had been driven out of the city and were in hiding, the authorities were able to secure most of the weaponry in the Custom House from the insurgents on 14 June. However they were able to hold out until 18 July. Arrest and trial Cromwell, who was the principal leader of the insurgents was arrested in August and tried in a secret trial at the Old City Gaol. After hearing of the hearings, the judge (James Winter) announced that Cromwell had been found guilty of high treason and was sentenced to be hanged. The result of the proceedings was a sensation in the city and across the country. After the last Jacobite Dublin Castle troops left the city on 3 December, it was the turn of the people to take up arms against their former allies. Cromwell and McCaughan were often mentioned by the rebels as inspirations for the city.

Posted on January 24, 2017 Shadow Minister for Young Australians Dr. Jenny Macklin MP said: "Every day, hundreds of high-achieving young Australians are doing the hard yards and starting to climb the career ladder, but that's only happening in a small number of the country's workplaces. "Our National Career Readiness Strategy and related policies are expected to deliver on their promise to increase the take-up of the high demand jobs that young people need in order to fulfill their potential. "It's an exciting time for young Australians. However, this Government has to make sure that it delivers on the promise of a fair go for young people in this country. "We cannot afford to spend our time wrangling over one small issue when there are many others that are affecting the lives of young people in the workforce. "The Prime Minister and the Minister for Education need to make a commitment to young Australians to deliver a more fair deal with a fair go for young workers in the workplace.”The MAO-A Val(158)Met polymorphism and mania and depression among adolescents and young adults. The enzyme monoamine oxidase-A (MAO-A) is thought to influence the reactivity of central monoaminergic neurotransmitters, and the MAO-A Val(158)Met polymorphism has been associated with personality traits and with manic and depressive symptoms in patients with bipolar disorder. The MAO-A Val(158)Met polymorphism has also been associated with childhood externalizing behavior disorders. The present study analyzed the association between the MAO-A Val(158)Met polymorphism and childhood-onset mania and depression in 131 children and adolescents with a history of a mania or a depressive disorder (DSM-IV criteria), who were hospitalized at a tertiary hospital and 99 unselected adolescent children and adolescents in the community. Patients were genotyped for the MAO-A Val(158)Met polymorphism. The MAO-A Val(158)Met polymorphism was related to mania, but not to depression, in our sample. In childhood-onset bipolar disorder, the MAO-A Val(158)Met polymorphism was associated with a more severe mania. Further replication studies are needed, as the number of patients in this study was
